I think there's no doubt that, you know, the Clintons to me, they were not guilty in the sense that they are guilty in the sense of the evidence that was put out and of the manner in which they were the focus of the investigation. CORNISH: You're looking at it from the perspective of what has happened. Is there a hypothetical case where you think the Clintons would be a different outcome? CHURCH: I think that there's an obvious hypothetical out. And what I mean by that is I think that if there was no Hillary Clinton in the picture and nobody in the 2016 presidential race — it would have been Bernie Sanders. But it's, you know, each election has its own set of issues. And so the fact that the Clintons were the focus of the investigation is a good thing because I think they were the guilty parties, and that's a good thing. You know, I think that there was no basis for trying to actually indict the Clintons, but I think the resources were used as you said on the Hillary Clinton email investigation. And I think, you know, f678ea9f9e
